HISTORY OF OUR BUSINESS

Peter Bohlender Stayed At Home While Gold Miners Rushed West To California.

In 1849, the same year in which gold was discovered in California, Peter Bohlender started working in a nursery near Dayton, Ohio. His natural love of trees and plants, his intimate knowledge of their proper planting and care, led him to the nursery business. So with the smallest of shoestring beginnings he launched his career as a nurseryman.

The buildings were small and the market was restricted to fruit trees and a few ornamental shrubs. Slowly, but surely, business improved and the nursery expanded. People around the locality of the nursery found that they could depend on Peter Bohlender's selection of plants. These people told their friends and the fame of the little nursery spread.

Peter Bohlender worked side by side with his men, cultivating the soil, planting and transplanting. Literally and actually he knew the business from the ground up. Even today, his grandson-successors are to be seen working in the fields. Like Peter Bohlender, they know the conditions of the soil from Practical Experience.

For 98 years the Bohlender Nurseries has been operated by the same family . . . from Peter Bohlender to son to grandsons. Under each generation the management has been of the productive rather than the executive type. With the members of the family are a number of staunch and loyal workers who have served from a quarter to almost half a century, each one generously giving valuable experience and advice.

Today, in 1947, the unbelievably small nursery has grown to gigantic proportions . . . the packing sheds alone now contain approximately 75,000 square feet, nearly 2 acres of floor space! It's the largest of its kind in the country! From these packing sheds each year go millions of plants and trees to every state in the UNION!

We attribute our success and growth to our location in the heart of the fertile Miami River Valley of Central Ohio, where we have superlative conditions for the production of the finest plants.

Bohlender's Hardy Vines

Their uses are many. Unsightly banks, fences, buildings, etc., can be beautified at a small expense. A sunny porch made cool: a plain front porch appears as if draped with expensive petaled curtains.
